Indiana's 200: The People Who Shaped the Hoosier State By Linda C. Gugin, James E. St Clair

This volume recognizes the people who made enduring contributions to the state of Indiana in its 200-year history. Written by historians, scholars, biographers, and independent researchers, the biographical essays will enhance the public's knowledge and appreciation of those who made a difference in the lives of Hoosiers, the country, and even the world.

While the essays contain standard biographical information, emphasis is placed on what these people accomplished and the resulting impact of their lives on the state and elsewhere.

Subjects profiled in the book include individuals from all fields of endeavor: law, politics, art, music, entertainment, literature, sports, education, business/industry, religion, science/invention/technology, as well as the notorious.

Editorial Review

Review

An impressive alphabetically presented biographical compendium, each individual entry in the pages of Indiana's 200: The People Who Shaped the Hoosier State includes DOB and DOD dates, a one line description of offices and/or positions, and summary biography; a bibliography of Further Readings; and the contributor's identification.

An invaluable and unique contribution to Indiana History and very highly recommended for academic library American History reference collections, Indiana's 200: The People Who Shaped the Hoosier State could well serve as a template for similar biographically oriented state histories.
